Hangovers history

ONEDOSE by LCA, with a natural cleansing ability, may assist the liver in removing toxins including nicotine, caffeine and alcohol, according to Feel Good Vending director Robert Davies. "With its unique combination of natural herbs and minerals, it's a remarkably fast and effective liver tonic, which stops that hangover feeling kicking in. You can take Onedose after consuming alcohol and wake up feeling 100 per cent," Mr Davies said.

He said it was also effective if taken during business lunches and helped people feel refreshed afterwards.

For people who feel sluggish in the afternoon, Onedose can be used as a 10-day liver cleanse that is not dependent on diet. The product can also be used as a "quick pick-me-up".

Onedose is available at pharmacies and bottle shops. For more information phone 1800 612 172 or visit www.onedose.com.au

Mask fine lines and wrinkles

AIMING to reduce the signs of ageing, intensive collagen face masks and intensive collagen eye masks will soon be available in convenient single sachet packs.

According to Elandra director Karen Passingham, the masks bring anti-ageing treatments to a whole new level, with the unique 'transdermal' delivery system that works by body heat activation.

"These innovative masks contain two types of collagen to help alleviate the look of fine lines and wrinkles," Ms Passingham said.

"The first is a unique, intense, soluble collagen that has a new ultra-low molecular structure for deep penetration and better absorption.

"The second is a natural rich plant extract collagen from the Acacia Tree (Acacia Senegal Extract) and both these ingredients combine to result in a more hydrated, younger looking skin. "Other key ingredients include mulberry root extract, portulaca oleracea plant extract and cucumber.

"These ingredients and the unique transdermal delivery system enrich and brighten the skin's appearance, smoothing uneven skin colour and help to soothe and calm the skin."

Ms Passingham said upon placing the masks on your face or eyes, the collagen gel transformed into a nutrient rich liquid, leaving the skin hydrated and younger looking.

The professional fabric masks are simple to use and require only a 20-minute application before they are peeled off.

Ms Passingham said all Elandra products had been created after extensive research and development and were perfect for those too busy for lengthy beauty treatments.

"These intensive beauty treatments will help replenish essential nutrients to the face and eye area and increase the skin's moisture levels, resulting in a softer, smoother, more hydrated complexion," she said.

"Intensive collagen face masks and intensive collagen eye masks are a non-invasive system and require no surgery or expensive trips to the salon."

The gel-based masks can be applied once a week or used occasionally to re-hydrate the skin.

Ms Passingham said the collagen face mask was an anti-ageing treatment with an amazing plumping effect to help treat fine lines and wrinkles and give the skin a fresh, youthful appearance.

The eye mask helps to smooth away the first signs of ageing, treating the symptoms of crow's feet, fine lines and frown lines.

Elandra products are available through selected Queensland pharmacies or via the website at www.elandra.com.au.

Great find!

Soap for sensitive skin

CLEOPATRA bathed in milk and now an enterprising mum is using goat's milk to produce chemical-free soaps. Leanne Faulkner heard that goat's milk soap often provided relief to people with sensitive skin.

Her son had eczema and she had a back yard full of goats and soon Billie Goat Soap was born. The soaps contain extra virgin olive oil and fresh goat's milk as well as lavender, rose geranium and milk and honey.

Look for the soaps and bath bags in health food stores, pharmacies and gift stores.
